Contents

Foreword by Craig Haney ix
Acknowledgments xv
A Note on Names xvii

Introduction 1

PART I  STEREOTYPES AND FRAMES

2  “Increasing Status in the Gang”: Fast Thinking and Overcharging in Gang-Related Crimes 29
3  Is This a Just World? How Stereotypes and Beliefs Change—A Personal Story 43
4  Frames and Facts: Contesting the Gang Frame 50
5  Cracks in the Frame: Subtyping and Stereotypes—A Personal Story 66
6  Crooked Frames: Giving Stereotypes a Boost 72
PART II DEHUMANIZATION

7 There Is No Such Thing as a Gang Member: Priming, Prototypes, and the Subconscious 89

8 Course Correction: Police, Racism, and China—A Personal Story 104

9 “Us” and “Them”: Racism and the Psychological Basis for Mass Incarceration 109

10 “I Did What You Said I Did. But I’m Not Who You Say I Am.”: Jacqueline Montañez and the Fundamental Attribution Error 129

PART III THE STRUGGLE FOR JUSTICE: REFRAMING STEREOTYPES AND OVERCOMING DEMONIZATION

11 Don’t Start Acting Human on Me Now: Prosecutors, Police, and Jail—A Personal Story 149

12 I Am Not a Hired Gun: Reframing and the Expert Witness Role 157

13 Humanizing Justice 183

Epilogue to the Stories 205

References 209

Index 217