Contents

Acknowledgments vii

Introduction: The Subject(s) of Human Rights; Recalibrating Asian/American Critique Guy Beauregard, Cathy J. Schlund-Vials, and Hsiu-chuan Lee 1

PART I RECOLLECTING HUMAN RIGHTS

1 Human Rights and South Korea: U.S. Imperialism, State Ideologies, and Camptown Prostitution Min-Jung Kim 21

2 After 1947: The Relative, the Refugee, and the Immigrant in the Chinese Canadian Family Narrative Christopher Lee 39

3 The Vancouver Asahi Connection: (Re-)engagement of the Families of Returnees/Deportees in Japanese Canadian History Masumi Izumi 56

4 A Journey to Freedom: Human Rights Discourse and Refugee Memory Vinh Nguyen 74

PART II IMPOSSIBLE SUBJECTS: RACE, GENDER, AND LABOR

5 “Every Bombed Village Is My Hometown”: James Baldwin’s Engagement with the American War in Vietnam Yin Wang 95
vi | Contents

6 Matronly Maids and Willful Women: Migrant Domestic Workers in the Plural | Christopher B. Patterson 109

7 (De)humanizing Labor: Southeast Asian Migrant Narratives in Taiwan | Grace Hui-chuan Wu 127

8 Factories, Farms, and Fisheries: Human Trafficking and Tethered Subjectivities from Asia to the Pacific | Annie Isabel Fukushima 144

PART III READING AT THE LIMITS: THE AFTERMATHS, AFTERLIVES, AND AESTHETICS OF HUMAN RIGHTS

9 Reframing Cambodia’s Killing Fields: The Commemorative Limitations of Atrocity Tourism | Cathy J. Schlund-Vials 163

10 Reclaiming Home and “Righting” Citizenships in Postwar Sri Lanka: Internal Displacement, Memory, and Human Rights | Dinidu Karunanayake 180

11 Toward an Aesthetics and Erotics of Nonsovereign Rights in Okinawa | Mayumo Inoue 201

12 Figuring North Korean Lives: Reading at the Limits of Human Rights | Christine Kim 217

Afterword: The Act of Listening | Madeleine Thien 233

Contributors 241

Index 247